Where do your students apply and where do they go?

The UCAS Progression Report gives you all the data you need to analyse where your students apply, where they go, and how this compares to previous cycles. This data, plus the demographic breakdowns and other data contained in the report can give you invaluable insight into your institution, your students and how you compare to the national average.

“The UCAS Progression Report provides a valuable insight into the destinations of your students year by year, allowing appropriate targeting of advice and guidance. It’s brilliant”

Director of Sixth Form, Dr Challoner’s Grammar School.

The Progression Report allows you to:

- analyse student applications made over the last two cycles – compare against previous cycles or national data
- view accepting institutions and subjects
- compare your student trends by subject or institution
- examine demographic trends.

Data is represented in easy-to-view graphs and charts and is currently available for the previous two cycles’.

The UCAS Progression Report can help your institution focus on what’s relevant for your students, ensuring your time and resources are placed where they are most needed. Comparing year-on-year trends also helps you predict and meet the needs of future applicants.
